—During the process of disarming the radical forces at La Plara on the right next, an incident occurred which may be accepted as a far illustration of the situation in that country. Averaphily as the radicals were disamed, the men started peacetally for home, but they invanishly gave vent to their enthusiasm by giving hamiless 1000 to their enthusiasm by giving hamiless 1000 to the radical party, to Alem, Irignyen and other popular leaders. That the present similar in linaril is extremely critical, no one will deny. Like-wise no one can safely predict what the result is to be. Bail government, disordered linances, selfish intrigues, dangerous prajects and untrustwanthy, inefficient service are to be found on every side, and worse than all this is the absulute indifference of the neonle. If we could see some worse than all this is the absolute infiliference of the people. If we could see some active and determined opposition to the evils which are ruining this country, then we could easily find reasons for the hope that the worst will never be realized, for Brazil is rich enough to be a strong and influential country, and she is not without citizens of high character and good purposes. But what can she do it all this natural wealth is wasted, and her best citizens refuse to take part in her government? It must be remembered that no form of government is either good or had in, itself; it is the personal element connected with it which gives it character and useities, it is after the monarchy, nor the republic can give peace and prosperity to this country, unless the people themselves unite to secure hinest and efficient administration. The form of government is only the dress which the body politic elects to wear, and it will be good and serviceable, or bad and miserviceable only in accordance with the intelligence, good judgment and habits of the people who form that hody. It is a mistake to assume that a monarchy is inherently bad, and that a republic is inherently good. Both are good, bad, or indifferent in conformity with the personal elements which compose them. Good and wise men can make a good monarchy just as they can make with it which gives it character and use-fulness. Neither the monachy, nor the make a good monarchy just as they can make a good republic, and, fer contra, bail, ignorant and unscrupnlous men can make ignoral and unscriptions men can make the best form of government an instrument of oppression and robbery. The personal element is therefore the essential latter in the future success of the Brazilian republic. The word "republic" has no magic in it; it is not the sesume which will open the door to prosperily and personal liberty, If Brazilians want these treasures, they must If Brazilians want these treasures, they must select intelligent, honest and capable men to direct their affairs. They must have good laws, good courts, efficient servants (for the official, after all, is only their paid servant), intelligent administration, a high grade of education and morals, industrous habits, patience and perseventnee. If with these Brazil can not be made prosperous and rich, then the laws of human development will have an exception.

An answer is expected from Secretary Gresham within a day in tivo, and just what action the government will take is anxiously awaited.

It has not been publicly known here just how far foreign governments have permitted the restriction on commercial telegrams to go without protest, but it has been quite clear to close observers that more than one effort has been made to secure a modieffort has been made to seeme a modification in a measure which was causing incalculable barm to every hismose interest connected with Brazil. All this, however, has been without avail. It has pleased the indicate of this country to treat his people as though they were all in a state at rehellion, and to employ such measures of repression as may best suit his purposes, without any regard whatever to forms of law or to the rights of those interested. The absence of a legal right to close the telegraph or to place arbitrary restrictions upon the liberties of crizens, has been ignored, and the businessmen of this country have been subjected to a censorship and prejudice which mothing a consorship and prejudice which nothing but an open insurrection could justify. We can understand the lorce and justifica-tion of such measures under the rule of martial law, but where martial law does not exist and where no unsurrection nor securifications. not exist and where no insurrection nor sign diminimental mappeared, no rational explanation is possible. This being the rate, the commercial interess of this country, both in the hands of natives and foreigners, have been made to suffer heavy bases and unwarranted annoyances without either the warrant of law, or the justification of rounnon sense. We are well aware that the object of the President was to those all possible communication between Admiral possible communication between Admiral essible communication between Admiral Aundenkulk and his friends in other parts of Brazil, but this officer left Rio Grande of Brazil, but this officer left Rio Grande on July 11th and was captined July 11th. Fairle was thereafter no occasion whatever for the restriction, even if there Ind been before, but still the problibution on code (begrains continued). And how absurd the whole measure was, may be seen in the simple fact that code telegrains could be sent to Europe and then returned over the sime lines to Montevidea, where they ends be sent to the federalist leaders in Rio Grande. The prohibition of course made telegraphing more difficult and expensive, but in cases of emergency and impormade telegraphing more difficult and expensive, but in cases of emergency and impartance these obstacles are never allowed to stand in the way. It is clear therefore that the measure did not really effect the purpose intended, but it did safely endatarase commerce and cause serious bases to men who had nothing whatever to the with the Rin Grande revolution. Such acts do not tend to help any cause, nor to strengthen a government in the resurent and could will at the ernment in the respect and good wid of the

—The Santa Catharina controversy is apparently to be transferred to this city. Herefil's Luz has been here some time, and Etysen Guitherne is now on his way up, having transferred the state government to the 2nd vice-governm. It is a fine outlook for the future of state governments in Bazzil, if their executives must come up to Kio de Janeiro to settle their little controversies.

"To the wiff helanges the zare. The remains of

After receiving these the Republica is to escort the unfortunate steamer out of brazilian waters. All Brazilian ports are closed against her. Three deaths have occurred since her arrival.

The name of Dr. Ruy Barloss is now being requently mentioned as a candidate for the presidency.

The resignation of the chief of pulce was accepted by President Floriano Pelvoto on the 22ml inst. The chief consented to continue and instead of continued conflicts between the police and solidery convinces us that their officers neither can solidery convinces us that their officers neither can sheep order, nor care even to make the attempt. With such these of discipline it is marvellous hin way any same man can ever expect to see Brazil developed into a great republic.

— The new regulations against unauthorized lotteries is giving the irrepressible fiscal mother stretch of authority with which to worry the public. A lady was arrested and taken to the police a few days ago for laving a probibited lottery ticket in live possession, and cases have occurred where houses have been violently entered and searched, without the sign of a legal order for so during. We have no special sympathy for the occupation of soliting lottery tickets, but we folieve most thoroughly in legal forms and in personal rights. These fiscals have no right to enter a private house, nor to search a man's premises without legal authorization. If these frespasses are permitted, the individual is absolutely without protection in this country.

—Our consul in Rio Grande gives some amusing instances of the amazing absurdily of Brazilian quarantine regulations. At least, they are amusing to read about, but in doubt struck the slipowners and masters concerned in a different light. A New York ship with a clean bill of health was detained six days off the Rio Grande har, no notice whatever heing taken of fer. On the seventh day she was informed lints she would have to proceed you must have a compelled to do, and did not arrive back at Rio Grande until 13th fantary, lawing lost a clear month. "What would be thought," aske the consult, not unmaturally, "if a vessel were to arrive from Brazil at Southampion, with a clean bill of health, and it were to receive orders to proceed to the Orkney Elses to ohtain pratique?" Many other freaks even less accombible for are instanced, and, in short, the authorities appear to conduct the business by methods that are thore popular in Beulam than in the outer world.—The Realto, London, August 5.

—The committee report in the Chamber on the hudget estimates for the receipts of next year places the total al 232,476,8908/43, including a probable hannee of $1,500,000$ in deposits. The estimates of the minister of finance placed these receipts at $2,51,520,908, a sum much larger than the committee feels warranted in calculating upon. The total expendatures were estimated at $20,655, 7998, which shows a deficit of $1,78,908/8257 on the committee's estimate, which will be further increased by 29,216,160$ differences in exchange, which the minister had left unt of his calculation, thus raising the final deficit to 47,395,608/$257.
